* F-Spot * GIMP * picasa # F-Spot f-spot is a simple application that enables you to add and sort photos. It has been designed to be easy to navigate, which is why it comes with a menu-driven interface. One of the most important things about F-Spot is that it indexes your images and allows you to view them in a timeline. This makes it easier to go back and forth through images, to print, export, or e-mail them. It's also an easy way to filter or view all your photos. To use F-Spot, you first select a folder to display the photos in. All photos in a folder appear together in the Photo Bin for easy reference. Then you can click on a photo and select an option, such as Open Image, Add to Collection, or Add to a Folder. This selects a single image, adds it to a collection, or adds it to the selected folder. By default, when you open an image with F-Spot, the first page displays a Photo Bin with all of the previously selected and added images. By double-clicking on one, F-Spot opens the image and displays it on the front page. This makes it easy to see where your image sits in the photo collection and how many times it has been modified since last viewing. When you edit a photo and save it, it will be associated with the original image. This enables you to manage large image collections with ease. When you have finished working with the image, you can either view the associated file or delete it from the collection. This makes your collection more manageable. You can add and organize your images with the Photo Bin, by clicking on an image to select it and then clicking on the plus sign at the bottom of the window. You can add or subtract images from the collection by clicking on the down arrow at the top right of the Photo Bin window. To organize your collection, you can drag images into any of the predefined categories. This is a handy way to organize your photos. You can also create a new folder by clicking on the menu button in the lower-left corner of the window and choosing New Folder. This is the same as opening the New Folder dialog box (see Figure 1.4). Here, you can give the folder a name and set any options you want, including the date and time you created the Distraction osteogenesis with and without osseous transport for congenital mandibular hypoplasia and micrognathia: a review. Congenital mandibular hypoplasia and micrognathia is a relatively common condition that can present a challenge for the orthodontist. To resolve this issue, a combined orthodontic and orthognathic surgical approach is generally required. A critical review of the recent literature describing the use of osseous distraction for the correction of congenital mandibular hypoplasia/micrognathia has been undertaken. Terrifying inferno under control; no injuries reported BROOKLYN, Maine — A massive forest fire and sweeping ocean of flames are under control, and no injuries have been reported, according to fire officials. “We’ve had a large fire with some uncontrolled sections of the northern side,” Maine Warden Service Capt. Jake Smith told The Kennebec Journal by telephone Tuesday afternoon. “We’re almost fully contained, so I can report no injuries.” The fire began in the late afternoon at about 5 p.m. Tuesday and reached a speed of about 20 feet per second through the wooded hillside on the north side of the fire, which is about 1.5 miles west-northwest of the village of Sumner. The blaze was spurred by weather factors, including an abundance of dry trees, heat and wind speeds up to 44 miles per hour. “We’ve been asked not to declare the situation contained until it’s been felt that there won’t be any issues with this fire,” Smith said. “We’ve had some extension of this fire. I’d say it has been contained, but we’re leaving no stone unturned.” Southeast Emergency Management Agency was tasked with coordinating the state’s emergency response to the fire. The blaze reached the grounds of the Sumner and Harrison schools by 5 p.m. Tuesday but was not threatening them, according to Smith. The fire knocked the power out for the Newfield fire station and surrounding area, including nearby homes. The town’s ambulance service, the fire department and an ambulance from Brunswick sustained no injuries, according to Smith, who provided the information by phone to The Journal.
