The RPG arrives: Armin and the others are living together in a world where two factions are at war against each other. Everywhere battle lines are drawn on both sides of the conflict, both in the fields and in the cities. Living together, we have to fight together. But some of us live a life of comfort, while others live an ordinary life of distress. "We are not going to let anyone interfere with our life." The rpg game is played from a top-down view. You can control Armin to progress. You can make party members from Armin's, Levi's, Berta's, Bertolt's, and Mikasa's top-down sprites. You can battle using the following combos: "Armin's battle" and "Berta's Battle". Eren, Levi, and Armin (together with Berta, Bertolt, and Mikasa) decide to live together. However, they are soon kidnapped and taken to the enemy's world. Here, they must, fight enemies in order to return home. Search for the people who kidnapped you. Fight battle. Complete story mode. Key Features Controls You can control the game with the arrow keys, or using the WASD keyboard. Player Character Convenience is the key to living. Games use top-down view.  The task for the player is to listen to those who are talking and try to guess who is speaking with a voice of a different person. In this case the hero himself is performing the test. With the help of headphones and a microphone, the player gets visual feedback. For the first step, the player will be asked to identify different noises: singing, murmuring of the wind, traffic, machines. The first attempt was successful and the player was able to distinguish three people. At this point the second attempt begins. The player is asked to recognize individuals by the sound of the voice. When the player correctly identifies a certain voice, he or she will hear a result that will indicate the score of the encounter. In this case it is possible to hear a real conversation with three people, and if the player guesses correctly, he or she will hear other information. Depending on the results of the game, the player progresses to a higher difficulty and the number of voices will increase. At the beginning the game is quite simple. Initially, each "voice" has a different character. The player hears three different voices - man, woman, and child. In this case the test is performed in a room with three people: Man, Woman, and Child. In the beginning of the game the audio feedback is not available. The only thing you can do - just listen to the conversations and try to hear who's speaking. To start the game, the player must wear headphones and the microphone. When you hear the first person, you must press the spacebar key to skip the first conversation. After finishing the first conversations, a new scene begins. This means that all three characters will come into the scene. In the beginning, this is all that you will hear. However, the player has a good opportunity to hear that they hear (if they are right). After you have identified the voices, it's possible to answer the question "Did you hear anything?". The player can choose one of three options - "yes", "no" and "not sure". Depending on the answer, the scene moves forward. "Yes" means that the player heard the conversation and was able to identify the voices. If the player chooses "no" or "not sure", the scene will move backward. By pressing the spacebar, the player can return to the previous scene. Only if the player presses the spacebar twice, the scene will be skipped. Based on the scan software "The Eye of the Sphinx" (developed by

OWAN” Betty, Bruce and Bruce’s father somehow known to Dwight as Widower Webb, invented a bunch of unmarketable (or unmarketable at the time) things like “paraffin wick in the vestment for incandescent lamps”, “medical stethoscope”, “progress plate in filing cabinet”, “Coca-Cola Atomic Clock”, etc. Some of the inventions are quite inventive and a few of them are notable as far as high-tech of the early 20th Century. One in particular, the “Wood veneer surface for gas stove” invention, was impressive; it was really a start on a future gas furnace! But they also produced an “Infrared Therapy Device” that looked more like a bomb, an ankle-high gliding “steerable wheel” for your “steed” and a “Bertha the Engine”. It has been said that this brand of Wyandotte values money and prestige over craftsmanship. The wife, Betty, had a massive Upper Left Wind Pronounced Memory, and trouble saving biscuits at the table for morning meetings at “Honey Fitz”. Before her death, she would sometimes add an “incorrigible” to a short phrase, making her phrase sound like “incorrigible anger”; any body would explain this as the result of Betty’s having suffered an episode of TBP during a visit to the doctor’s office. Before the Betty’s death, in fact, she left the household notice of her suffering as follows: “Widower Bruce came home at 10:00 AM and a little later a carpenter came. He and Bruce were in the parlor at this time and Bruce came in with a suitcase. They went into the back room and the carpenter said to Bruce, Bruce I could not help but know who you were when I saw that suitcase, Bruce started to explain about the years and how it was not right for him to be in our home and how we were struggling with $40.00 a month. Bruce said, “He then went to bed and when he came down he said he had arranged to stay with his father, he wouldn’t be here forever.” There was a pause, then Bruce said he had two
