I looked at the file header info and I found the file to be a setup file (setup.exe). I've tried disabling all my virus programs but they all still flag this file. What do you think the issue is? A: I found the file using VirusTotal. Unfortunately since it was flagged as a setup file, it was unable to detect the file (it just found it). I ended up downloading a free file checker and manually scanned it. The file seems to be safe. Bispectral index as an index of consciousness during propofol anaesthesia. The bispectral index (BIS) is a quantitative EEG monitor that can detect changes in consciousness during anaesthesia. A quantitative relationship between BIS and anaesthetic depth should be established for the effective use of BIS monitoring during anaesthesia. In this prospective, observational, single-centre study, we aimed to determine a quantitative relationship between BIS and the end-tidal concentration of propofol (ETcpropofol) as an index of consciousness during general anaesthesia in which BIS monitoring was used. Twenty-five adult patients undergoing various general surgical procedures were monitored using BIS and ETcpropofol throughout general anaesthesia induced by propofol. Using regression analyses we found a non-linear regression between BIS and ETcpropofol ($y = -2.024x + 38.789$, $r(2) = 0.850$, P 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to thermally responsive elements. 2. Description of the Prior Art Thermally responsive elements are useful for a variety of purposes, such as the regulation of temperature, the measurement of temperature, or the control of temperature. In addition, some prior art elements are responsive to light. While the prior art does include numerous devices, it appears that the present invention is novel. The present invention is a unique thermally responsive element, made from plastic, and may be used in conjunction with various other devices to provide
