HyperMotion Technology monitors and analyzes every interaction a player makes and gives soccer fans a sense of what the players feel like by replicating the motions of the player's movement on the pitch. This creates an accurate portrayal of how a player moves and positions himself. Game changer With HyperMotion Technology, football is more than just a game of football: the way fans experience the action on the pitch is completely new. For the first time ever, fans will be able to experience the great joy and emotion of an entire football match through the eyes of their favorite player. This gives a whole new perspective to the way we play the game. It allows fans to share in the exhilaration, thrill, and joy of football as one of the world's greatest sports. With HyperMotion Technology, players are now more fluid and dynamic in their on-field actions, and their balance is better preserved. Fans will experience the speed and agility players generate, and the true feeling of a football match with unrivaled realism. Win, lose, or draw, HyperMotion Technology creates a new dimension of emotion in all aspects of a player's movement. This new technology will have a profound effect on gameplay, especially when players face off and manoeuvre to win possession. Players simply can't hide anymore. With the new version of FIFA, they don't have the time or the space to evade opponents, slip away from defenders, or trick players in the box. Teams don't have the option of dragging defenders out of position, tricking them into giving away the ball, or making it appear their players have had the ball when they haven't. HyperMotion Technology will also change the way players on the pitch make contact with and move the ball. Other teams will be forced to adapt to this new dimension of football. The goalkeeper FIFA 20 and FIFA 21 introduced many new innovations that further improved the game. The most significant of these was the goalkeeper, who now has the ability to over-rotate, punching the ball when it's in mid-flight. Last year's innovation was a tool that enabled us to create more realistic handling and shot types by successfully blending a goalkeeper's heading technique into the player model. For FIFA 22, we have created a new in-game loading system. As a
