The D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals this week ruled that the Obama administration improperly acted to delay an important rule on greenhouse-gas emissions. The administration must either enact the rule within 60 days or withdraw it. Our work was not perfect. But I am thrilled to see the D.C. Circuit give us a second chance. I've heard from Environmental Defense Fund President Fred Krupp and a bunch of my colleagues at the Natural Resources Defense Council about the lawsuit. They know this is a complex issue and they know how important it is to protect the health of our children and our planet for generations to come. But they also know that the American public is with us and that our case is strong. ADVERTISEMENT The court order makes it clear that the public deserves a more open and transparent process when it comes to policymaking. We've got our work cut out for us, but we're going to do the right thing this time. We're going to get serious about our responsibility to protect the planet and the people who live on it. And our work can start right now. There are many other areas where we can do more to protect the air we breathe, the water we drink and the land where we grow our food. We've already got a pretty good plan to cut the power of so-called "dirty" coal, but we'll be taking that plan to the next level. We're expanding our target ranges in an effort to keep even more coal-fired power plants from opening. And we're going to work to improve the fuel efficiency of cars and trucks. That would slash the carbon pollution that'
