The sample shows how to encrypt a project and set public or private access. What is this? Send an encrypted email, Document, or image, and you can open it on any supported phone or tablet using the Microsoft Encrypt API. [Applause] Microsoft Encrypt. Here is the definition of the Encrypt API: Software and documentation that enables the creation of an encrypted file or message for the purpose of sending through email or other systems. [Applause] Encryption is the process of converting data into an unintelligible form, so that it can be secure and protect against damage or theft. [Mild Applause] As you can see, this is a very wide definition. The PDF is a legal document, so it is probably safe to assume it is not encrypted, right? Wrong, because the Encrypt API also works on local files like images, documents, and presentations. [Applause] So in this sample, we are going to use the Encrypt API to encrypt a file, and we will pass it to a destination using Microsoft Graph. When the file is encrypted, it will be named Microsoft.Encryption.XXXX We can also change the passphrase that protects the file. This passphrase must be at least seven characters long and contain at least one number and one special character. [Applause] Okay, let's open the.aspx of the Home project to try this out. First, we need to do some basic setup. We are using a copy of the same File Listing and Static List part of this project from the previous sample. There are no files in here because we aren't using code to populate the list. The File Listing contains two static files in the Resources folder. These are the resources that we want to encrypt. If you remember, these files are for all the images and documents in this sample. You can edit those files, but we want to make sure that any changes aren't saved. These files contain data about the files, so if we change the metadata about them, it might make the file incorrect. So we need to protect the Files folder from the File Listing. To do this, we have to use the Permissions section in the File Listing. This is where we can tell how we want to share the Files folder. In this sample
