downloadÂ .LINTON, Ind. - An Indiana woman who was paralyzed from the waist down in a medical experiment at age 14 has died in the first case of a deadly meningitis infection linked to injections of a non-approved human muscle protein. The Indiana state Department of Health said Monday that doctors at Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago in Chicago found a likely cause of death in a 48-year-old woman who died last week.

Authorities have found no link to the outbreak, which has killed 76 people and infected about 700 others in 22 states since November. But doctors said most of the victims had injections of an unapproved drug that they used to treat the woman at the rehabilitation center. The cause of death in the woman has not been released. But the death has triggered a criminal investigation into the administration of the unapproved drug, Zaraminab. It's an indication that more people could be infected. The drug, which had not been approved for use in humans, was supposed to help improve muscle and neurological function and reduce a person's fatigue. The patient's death occurred three years after she was injected with the medication. The investigation led to the
