In 1977, the good people of Earth face their gravest ever threat. The Gogoh Army has arrived from the outer reaches of space to invade the Earth! The Gogoh Army expect conquering the Earth will be an easy task. Little do they know that the Earth is prepared to resist, thanks to the Super Electric Research Center and the pinnacle of human scientific achievement: the giant combat robot known as Supercharged Robot VULKAISER! Ace pilot Takuya Akatsuki and Supercharged Robot VULKAISER will take on the attacking Gogoh Army, backed by the loyal VulFighter team and the head of the Super Electric Research Center, Professor Amamor! VULKAISER can COMBINE with the 4 other VulFighter craft for even more formidable firepower! As an extra challenge, one of the popular mascots from 70s TV anime, WONDERFUL LANTERN, has joined the battle! Play as her and crush Gogoh Soldiers in this remaster of ASTRO PORT's original super robot shooter with new content, including customized stages, new characters, new items, and new events. Supercharged Robot VULKAISER is built on the brand-new Decode Engine from Rocket KAISER, and it's the first time the Decode Engine has been used for a non-shooting game! * What is Decode Engine? Decode Engine is Rocket KAISER's powerful new engine which expands the possibilities of classic code scrolling game genres, so the type of games that can be made has been expanded greatly! So, what kind of games can Decode Engine make? - Code scrolling games, of course! - But also games in which screen panning is the primary method of gameplay, such as match-three puzzle games or scrolling action puzzle games. * What is VULKAISER? VULKAISER (meaning 'Powerful Warrior') is a fighting machine for the Super Electric Research Center used to defend the Earth. It's the largest robot in human history, standing nearly 50 meters tall. It can combine with the 4 VulFighter craft so that it becomes the super robot VULKAISER - COMBINE! #Rocket_KAISER: Rocket KAISER is ASTRO PORT's flagship game. Rocket KAISER's Decode Engine expands the possibilities of classic code

What's new:

Great Planes' toy set that strives to recreate, as close as possible, what it's like to use a Koala CPX. There are over 3,000 planes for you to create and conquer. With more than 550,000 copies sold worldwide, every release of the brand new Tiger Fighters from Great Planes contains, at its heart, one simple idea: to make the same award-winning, world-renowned toy that has been loved by generations into a game system that is accessible to parents of all ages and can be played together with their children. With a superbly designed joystick and easy-to-use buttons, controlling the incredible Star Wars-inspired fighters lets kids and grown-ups learn about physics—toy plane collisions, upgrades, balance issues, and then even spacecraft maneuvers—while having a fantastic time doing it. Differentiating settings to be suitably challenging or laid-back, the Tiger Fighters lets you “power up”, learn, and use your skills with the fighter! Great Planes has created the heroic-looking, bright red fighter plane that’s already had the crossover UK TV audience’s heart since it was first launched as Tiger Fighter in June 2002. The key feature is the joystick which now lets you fight with a top-loading clip—opening your own clip for upgrades. Over 600 component parts have been replaced by plastic and new parts to create a dramatic feature and are rooted, like the planes from Great Planes’ other game series, in a historical culture. Only new plastic parts and a new interactive feature—a clip that costs €3.00—change the look and feel of Tiger Fighter. Creating a “true to scale” toy set still means its best to hand-build the planes as you assemble it. Opening the box to reveal the factory box, the components can be gently unwrapped and then reassembled creating all the famous parts in one way or another. It is not easy to do, but for those of us with no scaling problems it is a real pleasure to get your hands around the parts and make them into a fighter. The planes are individually assembled and come unpainted so they can be used safely after they are packed into the play box. Despite their large number, the plastic parts are sometimes small in the overall construction. Only the parts of the cockpit are very large and other parts are large enough for small hands, but still, the detailing on the closest
