The line was built in 1898 by Canadian Northern Railway. It connects one of CN's head offices, in Covert to the first of the rail lines where industries and shipping was based. The line was purchased by the new owners of the line, the towns of Clearwater and Fox, and removed all of the tracks to build roads and homes. The line was then made passable, and is now open to local freight traffic. The region includes the towns of Clearwater, Fox, and East Fox. It begins near the town of East Fox, where a small yard exists to service the small industries that exist in the town. The line continues past the town, and then ends at Clearwater, where the Clearwater International Airport, and the CP Eastern main line heads. The extra track that is run on is used for the airport and to provide extra freight traffic to and from the airport. The region is almost completely flat, d41b202975
