What's new:

Return of the Heir: The Campaign for the Crown is a five-part web series by the British film maker James Best. In the series he documents the rise of Maia Savidge, the daughter of Prime Minister Jim Savidge, as a threat to the British royal family. Main Plot The plot is set in the period 2000-2005. Premier league footballer James "The Gypsy" Savidge comes into the public's eye after a violent incident at a nightclub. The incident leaves a gunshot wound in James's leg but he miraculously recovers. This event catapults James into the public spotlight. As a result, he is offered a sports sponsorship deal with a company called Dynakill but his concern for his family is soon shattered when they find out he has made a money transfer abroad. It is implied that the shooting was actually a planned assassination by two individuals who want to remove James from politics. The assassination was believed to have been a miscalculation by the hitman as when he was later questioned about the incident he is left without an alibi. Maia Savidge is the daughter of James and is a stubborn, extroverted tennis prodigy like her father. She is an outsider as James always left her to her mother's care and has no real interaction with him at all. When her mother dies Maia realises that her only chance to gain her father's attention is to marry a wealthy man, otherwise she will be doomed to spend her life alone and unloved by him. Maia's sister Azelia helps her pursue the plan by arranging for her to enter a tennis tournament. At the tournament Maia begins to fall for Steve Lowenthal, the millionaire son of a rich British estate owner. Ultimately Maia finds herself in a "love triangle" with her supposed father. She becomes increasingly disenchanted with him and leaves his home but later changes her mind. In an attempt to win her back James kidnaps his own daughter and sets up an action-packed plan to recapture Maia. Cast Main Cast James Best as Jim Savidge: Leader of the Labour party and father to Maia. Bart Haystyn as Steve Lowenthal: The title heir to the Lowenthal family which owns the Bracewell estate as well as one of Maia's love interests. Reece Ritchie as James: Maia's father. Lia Callanan as Maia Savidge: The funny,
