Surface: Alone in the Mist: A First-person Action-Adventure Game Set in the London Underground

Introducing this Epic adventure game starring a well known film and audio company CEO; Scott Gregory Simms, game creator of the acclaimed "Superbrothers: Sword and Sworcery EP" and "The Stanley Parable" series currently based out of Los Angeles.

After a hectic morning of final editing on his latest film "One-eyed Jack", our CEO is eating his lunch at his favourite restaurant and then gets locked out of his desk. Unfortunately for him, the panic stricken CEO is stuck in the hidden depths of the London underground - after a horrific start, the hero of this game has only one goal in mind; return to his desk and get back to work!

In a bid to escape his London career dilemma, Scott is determined to wade through his way to the railway station. As he journeys, he is branded as a terrorist by twisted security officers, chased by a SWAT team, and eventually saved by a strange old guy who seems to know him. With his brain fried by the night before, Scott may not remember this stranger, but his life feels as though it is being stretched out into a warzone of corrupted technology and insane conspiracy theories. When the hero of "Surface: Alone in the Mist" meets a number of helpful (but insane) people in the underground, he must decide to stay and fight for his life or return to the surface and fight the enemy another day. Currently on the way to be put out in limited release out in limited release.
