But there are situations where a dog may come to a rescue organization and can no longer be with their previous family. Some of the ways a RSPCA shelter can assist a family in this situation: Prepare a plan to make that the new family member has a happy and healthy life. Provide socialization. "The most important part is to provide a home," said Patti Buckles, interim director of operations for the RSPCA. "We recommend that the family be trained to be around the animal and to understand how to care for the animal." Caring for pets around children Children might be affected by a pet that is friendly or may not be friendly. "The first thing is to ask yourself, is the dog or cat appropriate for a child or family?" said Buckles. Is the dog aggressive or hyperactive? Can the owner control the dog? She said socializing children with dogs is important. "We want to make sure that children learn about respecting, not only the animals, but the space around them." However, Buckles warns that a child whose

A group of federal prosecutors have drawn up criminal charges against the president for what they say were his “sweeping and unconstitutional” interference in the midterm election, according to two people familiar with the case. The charges and the type of crimes listed — both felonies — are likely to add to pressure on Attorney General William Barr to do more than he has to hold on to a redoubt of political power he already controls. Barr, who made disparaging remarks about President Trump during an interview with CBS last week, has come under recent fire for refusing to investigate the president. The prosecutors’ movement is entirely partisan, going after Mr. Trump in a mission to ensure his ouster, said two former Justice Department officials, describing the threatened charges as the strongest the department could bring without going to court. More important, the prosecutors are all Democrats, but some have also said they believe the president should be charged in state court. The White House has signalled that the president is not worried about what prosecutors do.

The title of my question doesn't really do justice to the question. If I have two independent random variables X and Y , and X and Y both have some mode (the mode being the most frequent value in its distribution), must X and Y have the same mode? For example, let X be the difference between a normally distributed random variable and
