To evaluate the effect of increasing the blood flow on the nutrition state and function of the liver in type 2 diabetic patients with hypoalbuminemia (HA). Ninety-five diabetic patients with HA were divided into two groups according to the value of albumin. The patients in group 1 were treated with rapid infusion of albumin for 1 hour; the patients in group 2 were with regular infusion of albumin. After treatment for 3 months, the serum albumin concentration, plasma lipids and protein synthesis rate, and the serum lipids concentration in the patients with HA in each group were determined. Compared with the patients in group 2, the serum albumin concentration increased significantly in the patients in group 1 ( $Z = -10.18$ ,  $P = 0.00$ ); the serum triglyceride concentration decreased significantly in group 1, and there was no significant difference between group 1 and group 2. The serum albumin concentration and plasma lipids and protein synthesis rate were increased in the patients in group 1; the ratio of albumin synthesis rate to plasma total lipids was increased in both group 1 and group 2. The serum triglyceride concentration was decreased in group 1, but there was no significant difference between the two groups. The study showed that increased blood flow can help improve the nutrition state in type 2 diabetic patients with HA and is a simple and safe therapy.Q: How to get base64 from a file (as in libjpeg) I'm trying to get a jpeg image from a file in memory without saving it to disk.
