1. Open the image you want to work on and place it into Photoshop. This tutorial covers only a handful of the many functions available in Photoshop, including the ability to trim, crop, sharpen, adjust contrast and saturation, change color, convert to black and white, convert to grayscale, and reduce noise. The images used in this chapter have not been altered in any way, so you can choose images from any of your previous chapters. 2. Click the Add Layer button (the + sign in the Layers panel) or press Ctrl+Alt+Shift+A, and then choose Create New. A new, empty layer appears at the bottom of the layers panel. 3. Click the Opacity/Filter Layer button (the square with two dots), and then choose Overlay. The New Layer dialog box appears and asks you to name the new layer. 4. Type _Mask_ or choose a name from the Name drop-down menu. Alternatively, you can choose Layer from the New Layer dialog box and then click OK in the New Layer dialog box. 5. Click OK in the New Layer dialog box. The Mask layer appears at the bottom of the Layers panel and you can see the areas that have been masked. 6. Drag the masking window or select the areas you want to hide from the Layers panel and drag them into the masking window. 7. Double-click the masking layer and type the new name in the Name text box. For this example, I use Masking Layer 1. You can click the little green check mark to lock in the new name, or click the red x to delete the layer. In the Layers panel, you have now hidden certain portions of the image, but it's possible to see those areas because you have the visible pixels selected. 8. With the visible pixels selected, choose Filter => Blur => Gaussian Blur. 9. Select a radius of _5_ pixels in the Blur dialog box. 10. Click OK and then click OK in the New Layer dialog box. You now have a blurred layer. If you want to reduce the size of the blurred area, increase the radius in the Gaussian Blur dialog box. 11

Q: MS CRM only allows a user to update one field - how to allow them to update all? We have a custom field that stores the payroll rate for each employee and it gets filled automatically from the CPT (CurrencyPairTranslation) table of our SQL Server Database using a query. This table is populated from data in another SQL Server Database that is linked to the CRM database. What we want to do is create a webpage that users can view their information and edit it. They then update their information in the CRM database and then the system will update the payroll rate in CPT in the SQL Database and in the CRM database. The problem is that when it updates it updates only the row that was changed and not all the rows that were updated. Any ideas? A: You can update multiple records in the linked table using a single SQL statement, for example: UPDATE A SET B = B + 20 FROM TableA A INNER JOIN TableB B ON A.ID = B.ID information that has been collected from a person, providing that the person has voluntarily consent to such collection of information by an employer. ¶17. When evaluating the reasonableness of an employer's search of a prospective employee, this Court will consider: (a) the employee's seniority, years of service and other factors that may tend to show that the employee has a greater likelihood of being hired for the job than others with less seniority, years of service or other factors; (b) the nature of the job for which applicants are being considered; (c) the responsibilities associated with the position; (d) the time span over which the search for the prospective employee is to be conducted; (e) the location of the search, e.g., urban

In a conventional configuration, an energy storage system of an electric vehicle includes a rechargeable battery, and battery pack for supplying or receiving direct current (DC) power to or from the rechargeable battery. The battery pack is built in a vehicle, and is connected to a DC power supply through a DC cable. Furthermore, the battery pack is typically a massive assembly of a large number of cells. Each cell (or unit) has a terminal for receiving DC power from the DC power supply and a terminal for supplying power to electric loads of the vehicle. The large number of cells is assembled in a subassembly structure to form the battery pack. The subassembly structure also has a DC cable for connecting the terminals of the cells together. Large-scale battery packs require higher processing and assembling costs. To realize a smaller battery pack, such as a battery pack for use in a lower cost electric vehicle, designers have tried to connect the cells through an energy transfer device that uses different battery technologies. One type of energy transfer device comprises a plurality of energy exchange terminals connected to cells through an electrolyte and a voltage-converter to provide a high output voltage, which is suitable for AC-charging a battery. Such energy exchange devices comprise energy transfer terminals and a transformer. The transformer is connected to the energy exchange terminals to transfer power between the battery and the energy exchange terminals. However, in this energy transfer device, the transformer is also a large assembly. It is desirable to provide alternative energy transfer devices with multiple energy exchange terminals capable of minimizing the volume of the energy transfer device to overcome at least the above disadvantages.Sponsor Saturday, May 4, 2014 I didn't make it to the start of Luminaria 14 in the SDF, but very
