I play it as an expression of myself and my imagination and my creativity and I have a lot of fun with it. I'm not into the power of it. I'm more about the character. I'm a long way from here (laughs) but I'm still learning all the time. I'm still getting there. Are you keeping a journal? Yea! Whenever I get new information, I'll put it in a big book or notebook and give it to my manager. I actually send him a daily journal, where I just write about what happened, and he reads it to me and gives me notes. He really likes to go over the small stuff. You were good about that, because you're not married, you don't have kids, you don't really have a relationship. He's reminding you that you're not independent. Yea, sometimes it's difficult. It's good to have someone remind you, but I think you should remind yourself as well. I always tell my manager, he's a good listener and I know I should listen to him. I used to try
