Meanwhile, the Times reports that "U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents are planning raids on hundreds of houses across the country as part of a wider effort to deport hundreds of immigrants with criminal records who were living legally and thought to be safe from deportation.”Aparna Sharma is an Assistant Professor in Industrial Marketing and Management at Ashoka University. In the recent Delhi and Districts Elections, her efforts have contributed to the victory of her party, the AAP, who would be forming a government. Professor Aparna Sharma Here we speak to her about her experiences in the elections and why she feels the Indian women always prove to be a great success story in every aspect of life. How was the Delhi Elections you were heading into the last phase. It was a chaotic phase and I felt that the party has not really got a victory. In that, I did not see any BJP wave. I was waiting for the BJP to make a historic wave. I wanted them to win by 50 or 60 seats. When it wasn't happening, I started thinking about what I should have done differently. How did you manage to get the nomination? It was very stressful as I don't want to say, 'I worked for it'. I don't want to take credit for it. It was a gentlemen's agreement – of many parties. They knew that I will be leaving the party any moment. So, they asked me to be loyal to them for the next three months. I agreed to do that. So, what was your strategy to win? It was a party of c6a93da74d
