Its neighbour villages are Ballon to the north and Killiney to the east. The River Nanny runs through the village, which was once the main market for the surrounding area, a role now played by Ballon. The village has a post office, but the Church of St. Patrick has been closed for some years due to financial difficulties, and is to be converted into a private house. History Ardee was once the major town in the surrounding area. It became a market town in the 11th century when the Normans introduced laws to restrict the size of markets. The village has a church, some old buildings and a local shop/community centre. Travellers The village was a stopping place on the old Royal Canal, which was built in the early 18th century and mostly destroyed during the 19th century. The canal was built by the Earl of Mansfield in 1768. The routing of the canal through the village changed several times, but from 1787 it ran through the village, bypassing Killiney.
