one of the biggest complaints about the previous nba live games was the lack of a shooting foul. nba 2k9 will finally get this, and even include an extra foul. however, unlike the fouls in nba 2k9, nba live 8 now has a different foul scheme. in nba 2k9, you'll use the drive foul when you drive too far and crash into the player. in nba live 8, you'll use the jump foul when you jump too far and foul the player. the number of fouls you can use in the game is unlimited, and you can even use it on one player in a specific way.

for example, you can use the jump foul on one player to prevent him from driving and crashing into the ballhandler. the free basketball mode in nba live 08 will now include the option to dunk contest. a new type of "contest" where a small group of players battle to see who can throw down the most dunks, this mode is very similar to the one found in nba 2k9. the person with the most points at the end of the game will be declared the winner. the game will also include new dunk animations and a new set of dunks to perform. im not a huge 2k fan but seeing this ui on a 360 kinda makes me want to try this game out. more options this time around for sure. who cares if the 2k series is a little dated and lacks innovation. u guys know its the best selling sports title out there. lol, i think you guys have it a little backwards. ea sports hasn't lost their touch, they've just added some new things to their interface. for example, you can now type or click on players to bring up their ratings, something that's taken me forever to figure out. but that's just one thing. the addition of the "next move" button is another game changer and a must for any sports title. playing as kobe, lebron, or durant, you can see that if you don't know what to do, you can use the next move button to quickly figure out what move would be the best. i also noticed that the "1 on 1" and "2 on 2" situations are a lot easier to do now. for example, if you're a psp gamer, there's no more "1 on 1" button that you have to press while getting the rebound. that's been taken care of. i can see why

ea sports would go with this design philosophy because most people are used to it. when using the mouse, they have to move the cursor from player to player and then click to pick up the ball. the next move button eliminates that part and makes it much easier to decide what move to make.
