First, go to Most websites will have a "Keywords" page that lists the words that appear in their pages in order of frequency, or so you would think. So if I type in "100", I expect to see the word "100" appear at the top of the list. In some cases, this is true, but in other cases it is not. If you want to find the keywords for your site, visit and enter your URL, which is the address of the main page for your site. There's an orange button at the top that says, "Rank This Site". You can also find this information directly from Google: go to and then type in your URL and you'll see it on the page that shows you keywords. (When you type in your URL, it always shows up at the top of the list.) If you use PageRank (PR), you can enter in a URL that is not your site's main page, and then click on the orange "Rank This Site" button and you'll see the keywords for the page you're on. So you can see that in addition to not having the most important keywords, you could actually have one that is more important than your site's main page. If you get into the habit of doing that, you'll be making it easier for Google to spot the keywords you are trying to rank for, and you'll be making it easier for people to find your site. And you don't want to use words that are generic, that have nothing to do with what you are selling. There are all sorts of tools that are available to check for that, you just need to know where to find them.
