Post-surgery vision outcomes in patients with juvenile myopia: results of a prospective study. To assess changes in retinal thickness in patients with juvenile myopia (JM) after different stages of cataract surgery. Prospective cohort study. University-based tertiary referral centre. Patients with JM were examined before (mean age 13.5 years, SE 1.2) and 2 years after (mean age 15.3 years, SE 1.4) phacoemulsification with intraocular lens implantation. Optical coherence tomography (OCT) was performed pre- and 2 years post-surgery. The pre- and post-surgery thicknesses of the macular retina (central subfield) and the peripapillary retina, as well as the pre- and post-surgery visual acuity were compared. A total of 52 eyes of 26 patients were included. Pre-surgery mean refractive error was -6.
